

British Powerlifting is thrilled to announce the appointment of James Brincat-Smith as our new Competition Director. With his wealth of experience and passion for the sport, we are confident that James will play a pivotal role in advancing the standard of national competitions in British Powerlifting.

James brings an impressive background in powerlifting, having not only competed at the international level but also contributed significantly to the growth of the sport in his home division and beyond. His dedication to promoting fair competition, athlete development, and the overall growth of powerlifting aligns perfectly with our mission at British Powerlifting.

As Competition Director, James will oversee all aspects of competition management, ensuring that our events maintain the highest standards of professionalism, fairness, and inclusivity. He will work closely with our athletes, coaches, and officials to create an environment where powerlifters can thrive and reach their full potential.

In addition to his administrative skills, James's vision for the future of British Powerlifting is inspiring. He is committed to expanding our reach to new communities, fostering grassroots development, and enhancing the overall experience for all involved in our sport.
